

Qualitative Exercise

Analysis of Tasks 1 and 2 for Axel Goris and Rafat Khan

REVIEW

Questions are written very well, just a few remarks about some questions.

For question 3, using the words like “What do you think” does not translate the purpose of the survey question fully, instead of asking “what you think” the qualitative question can be the same as asked in the survey because that question makes sense for a good qualitative question.

For question 4, the context of the question is whether the parents find the internet safe for their children without their presence. But the qualitative question asked of yours was directed to answer if they have ever seen their children confronted by inappropriate material on the internet. The answer is interpreted as either if they have or if they have not and hence lose the purpose.

For question 6, the question is not specific. Hence it could be misinterpreted.

In Task 2, questions 3,4 and 5 look incomplete or maybe we didn't get the idea fully. The grammar in question 6 is also not clear.
